

Ever-increasing importance of police international cooperation

1 Increasing international exchanges and interactions

With the rapid development of international exchanges of people, products and information interactions among countries are increasing. Under those circumstances, globalization of international organized crimes, such as terrorism or drug trafficking, is affecting all countries around the globe.

2 Need for good governance

Police administration is the most important social foundation to support the development of a nation and is an absolute necessity to achieve good governance. It is also recognized internationally that, if good governance is not achieved, international assistance of funds and commodities will not show good result.

3 Various requests from foreign countries

Police management, “Koban” system (Japan’s unique police box system), investigation method, criminal identification technique and other know-how cultivated by Japanese Police attract a strong interest, and Japanese Police are required to technically assist in those fields.

Main International Seminars

Seminar on Organized Crimes in Asia (<'88~>
Seminar on Control of Drug Offences III (<'62~>
International Seminar on Criminal Identification (<'94~>
Asia-Pacific Operational Drug Enforcement Conference (<'95~>
Seminar on International Terrorism Investigation II (<'95~> Seminar for Senior Police Managers (<'96~>
Seminar on Police Info-communications (<'97~>
Asian Conference on Cybercrime Investigation Technology (<'01~>

NPA, National Police Agency, invites more than 100 law enforcement officials from about 50 countries to these seminars each year.