

Significance of international cooperation by police

1 Contribution, as part of the government, to the international society

International cooperation is the nation's responsibility in the international society. As part of the government, Japanese Police are requested to transfer time-tested skills and knowledge to other countries.

2 Countermeasures against international terrorism and criminal organization, and protection of Japanese nationals overseas

Development of police capability in foreign countries directly increases the standard of public safety in respective countries as the result. It will prevent a country from becoming a criminal loophole for international crimes, and will increase the safety of Japanese nationals in foreign countries.

3 Reinforcement of the cooperation with police bodies in foreign countries

Through the international cooperation, good relationship with police organizations in foreign countries will be established, and it will enhance the cooperation in crime prevention and investigation of international crimes.
