I. Upon Establishing the “Basic Plan on Measures against Child Sexual Exploitation”

Creating a society where every child, as a part of the next generation, grows up healthy without being harmed mentally or physically is an issue shared by all of us.

Child sexual exploitation, such as the production of child pornography or child prostitution, is an extremely heinous act that causes harm to children mentally and physically, and seriously violates their human rights, which should not be forgivable. Even worse, child sexual exploitation is committed by adults, who should protect and nurture children, and, in many cases, child sexual exploitation continues to harm child victims for a long period beyond time and space, via the internet.

Looking at the current state of this issue in Japan, the number of arrested cases and the number of offenders arrested for child pornography as well as the number of child victims all keep hitting record highs since statistics began. The number of children that have become victim of child prostitution as a result of using community sites also keeps rising. In addition, heinous crimes such as those that victimize younger children that are unable to resist never seem to stop, and new forms of business focusing on children as sexual objects have emerged one after another.

Efforts toward the eradication of child sexual exploitation are a common concern of international society. Failing to make sufficient efforts and to disseminate precise information about how we can tackle this issue would subject us to criticism from international society.

Toward the start of the Tokyo 2020 Olympic and Paralympic Games, the government of Japan is now making efforts to realize “Japan, the Safest Country in the World.” We also need to show both at home and abroad that Japan is a safe country, especially for children, where child sexual exploitation is severely punished.

To this end, not only an approach that treats symptoms but also measures to address the factors and background regarding child sexual exploitation are necessary for ensuring the eradication of child sexual exploitation.

Based on the above understanding, the government seeks to realize a society where children are protected from sexual exploitation in every way and space, including at home, in occupational settings, and in the local community, by implementing multi-faceted and comprehensive measures in an integrated manner, focusing on children, their parents/guardians, offenders, and tools or places used for sexual exploitation. This is in addition to mention raising public awareness so that child sexual exploitation can be wholly prevented, while securing cooperation from people from all walks of life.
II. Approaches and Outline of the “Basic Plan on Measures against Child Sexual Exploitation”

Based on the recognition stated in I. above, this “Basic Plan on Measures against Child Sexual Exploitation” (hereinafter referred to as the “Basic Plan”) sets forth the policies that the government should implement during the target period before the Tokyo 2020 Olympic and Paralympic Games for the eradication of child sexual exploitation under the framework of existing laws and regulations.

Under this Basic Plan, related ministries and agencies shall promote concrete measures in cooperation not only with people from all walks of life, private business operators, and organizations concerned, but also with international society, while reviewing the implementation status as necessary with general coordination by the National Public Safety Commission.

This Basic Plan has the following six pillars, and the concrete measures for each pillar will be described in III.

1. Enhancement of public awareness regarding the eradication of child sexual exploitation, development of social awareness, and the strengthening of collaboration with international society

It is highly probably that incidents of child sexual exploitation are hidden for various reasons. To detect them early, in addition to developing an environment where child victims feel comfortable in reporting such incidents and consulting with others, it will be effective to encourage anonymous reporting by the general public. Although related ministries and agencies have already established a system to receive anonymous reports of child sexual exploitation, the current state of reporting is not satisfactory. It is necessary to further raise public awareness toward the issue of child sexual exploitation.

As from the fact that, in some large-scale entertainment areas, businesses focused on children as sexual objects are openly operated, customers exist that expect sexual services from children. Also, the sexual victimization of children through the use of the internet would not occur without the existence of offenders that desire contact with children. In order to eradicate the existence of such offenders, it is essential to heighten public opinion to be vehemently opposed to child sexual exploitation in any form.

Meanwhile, Japan has been promoting efforts for various measures against child sexual exploitation such as child pornography in collaboration with international society and is providing information on such efforts to international society through various opportunities. For the future, it will be necessary to continue promoting efforts in collaboration with international society, and at the same time, to provide more information to international society from the viewpoint of gaining a better understanding from international society of our efforts.

2. Support for children and families to ensure the sound growth of children without victimization by sexual exploitation

With the rapid proliferation of the internet connection devices such as smartphones and the use of various services including smartphone applications among children, more children have become victims of sexual exploitation through the use of community sites, etc. In order to prevent such victimization, it is important for children and their parents/guardians to correctly recognize the potential risks associated with the use of the internet via smartphones, etc., and the effective means to reduce the risks, such as the filtering services, along with taking necessary measures. However, with the increase of the points to be noted by children and their parents/guardians in using the internet, their burden is increasing. Therefore, mobile carriers and internet service providers as well as schools and other organizations concerned with children and their parents/guardians need to work together to support children and their parents/guardians on a continuous basis so that children can use the internet safely and securely.

Meanwhile, looking into cases of children sexually victimized as a result of using community sites or working for businesses focused on children as sexual objects, there are cases where children sought encounter with someone on the internet or in some cases where they willingly engaged in sex-related businesses thoughtlessly in order to attain a feeling of belonging, due to the absence of such a feeling either at home or at school, for various reasons (including economically), though their family environments vary greatly. When providing support for these children, it may be necessary to improve their family environment in the medium-to-long term, depending on circumstances. Also, considering the current situation that requires the creation of an environment where all of society can help children grow up due to the increase of single-parent families, it will be appropriate to keep an eye on the children that repeat problematic behavior, such as hanging out in the middle of night (because they may not feel that they belong at home for other reasons) and their parents/guardians, in cooperation with organizations concerned, while providing appropriate support.

3. Promotion of measures to prevent the occurrence and spread of victimization that focuses on tools used for child sexual exploitation

In many cases, child prostitution or child pornography offenders access community sites to hunt for children with the intent to have sex with them from the beginning. For the prevention of the occurrence and spread of victimization by child sexual exploitation, it is necessary to implement measures focused on the tools used for child sexual exploitation.

In particular, the following situation must be dealt with properly.

- Smartphones that have wireless LAN connection and application download functions or tools that intermediate the encounter between offenders and child victims, such as SNS, are becoming more widely used, diversified, and sophisticated.
- With the decline in the utilization rate of the filtering services that are effective in preventing children from viewing illegal/harmful information on the internet, the chances increase for children to encounter ill-intentioned persons and to become victims.

In addition, child pornography will continue hurting a child victim for a long period of time once a picture of a child is posted on the internet. Given the increasing tendencies of child pornography-related crimes, it is necessary to further promote measures to prevent the distribution of and access to images of child sexual exploitation on the internet, including the deletion of such images.

4. Prompt protection of child victims and the promotion of appropriate support

As child sexual exploitation inflicts harm on children mentally and physically, it is necessary to physically separate the child victim from the offender and to protect the child immediately as soon as an offense is detected and, depending on the mental and physical damage that the child victim suffers, to start appropriate support so that the damage is healed early and so that the child victim can live a peaceful and positive life in society.

In doing so, the following circumstances must be considered and dealt with appropriately.

- Incidents of child sexual exploitation are highly probable to be hidden for various reasons such as that the child victim is too young to report the situation and to consult with someone about what occurred, that the child victim does not want others to know about the incident because of the relationship with the offender, or that the child victim does not realize that they are actually a victim.
- For the protection and support of child victims, not only temporary custody in the initial stage but also continuous support including mental care are highly necessary. In some cases, medium- to long-term support is required, including the improvement of the family environment of the child victim and the rebuilding of the family relationship. In order to implement such support continuously and effectively, collaboration between related administrative bodies and private organizations concerned, etc., is important.
- When protecting and supporting a child victim, sufficient attention must be given to prevent secondary victimization.
- It is pointed out regarding protection and support for child victims that necessary information is not thoroughly disseminated to those that need such, including child victims.

5. Strengthening of crackdowns based on the situation of victimization and the rehabilitation of offenders

As child sexual exploitation is an extremely heinous act that causes mental and physical damage to children, who are the bearers of the next generation, the police have been promoting crackdowns by aggressively applying the provisions of the Penal Code (Act No. 45 of 1907), Act Against Child Prostitution and Child Pornography, labor-related laws and regulations, child welfare-related laws and regulations, prefectural ordinances regarding the sound development of children, and other laws and regulations.

However, the situation of child sexual exploitation is becoming more serious. For example, refer to the following.

- The number of arrested cases for child pornography crimes in 2016 was 2,097, an increase for nine consecutive years since 2008, and the number of child victims was 1,313, a 4.8-fold increase in the past 10 years. Both reached record highs.

- With the rapid proliferation of internet connection devices such as smartphones and the use of various services including SNS among children, cases of children victimized in sexual exploitation through the use of community sites, etc., are on the increase. Among them are cases of organized crime syndicates taking advantage of the anonymous nature of the internet, such as in pretending to be a child and intermediating child prostitution in the name of “patronage dating,” cases where new applications providing images for a price are used, and cases of wide-area-based abduction. As a result, the burden of investigation is increasing.
- In the businesses focused on children as sexual objects that are emerging in some large-scale entertainment/amusement areas, although they are disguised as operating in compliance with existing various business regulations, illegal sexual services are provided with the consent or under the direction of the operator, or children are in some way sexually victimized.

In addition, as it is important to prevent once-arrested offenders from repeating the offense, the following situation of the offenders must be taken into account and dealt with appropriately.
- Some offenders lack the realization that they are committing a heinous and despicable act by treating children, who are the bearers of the next generation and who should be protected, as a means for satisfying their sexual urges, and others commit offenses with no consideration for the feelings of the child victims.
- It is concerned that these types of offenders as described above will continue committing offenses or will take new child victims, even if they have been punished.

6. Strengthening of the foundation for realizing a society where children will never become victims of sexual exploitation

It is necessary to establish a system for securing the steady and appropriate implementation of each measures set forth in the Basic Plan.
